

1949

Freshman Camp

The Class of '53 starts its college career at Camp Radford

Left—Frosh surround President DuBridge (who wore the loudest shirt in camp) after his evening talk on Russia and the bomb. Below—Photographers' round-up of faculty members at the camp (there were about 30 in all) netted the 17 rumpiled representatives shown here.

Haagen-Smit

Eagleson

Nieman

Kyropoulos

Clark

Varney

Mead

Strong

Jahns

H

Hershey

Tanham

Eaton

Jones

Smith

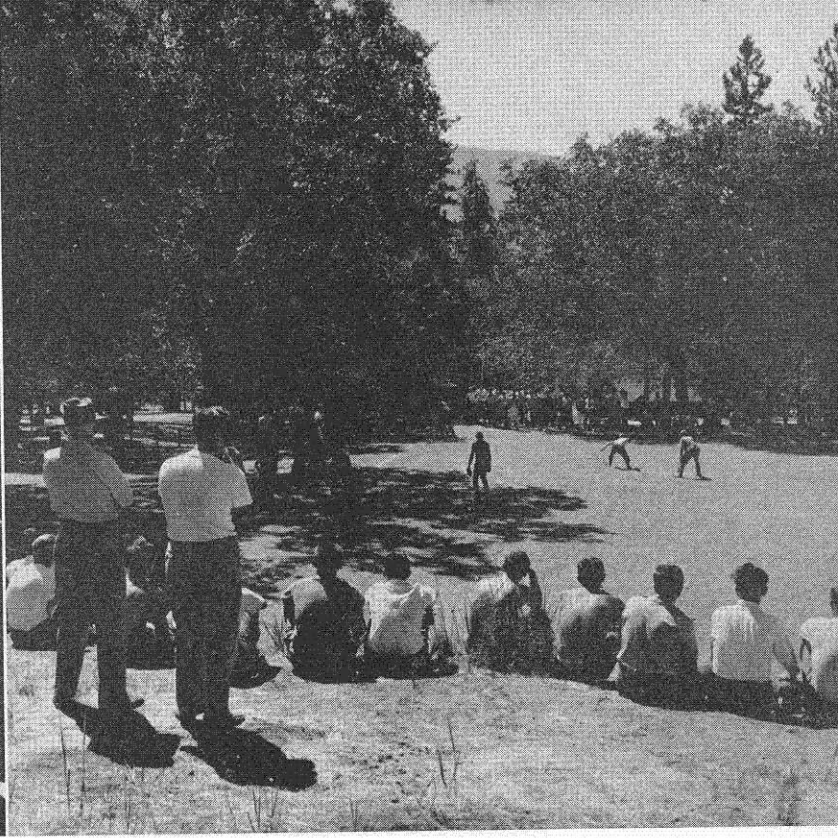

Thomas

Lindvall

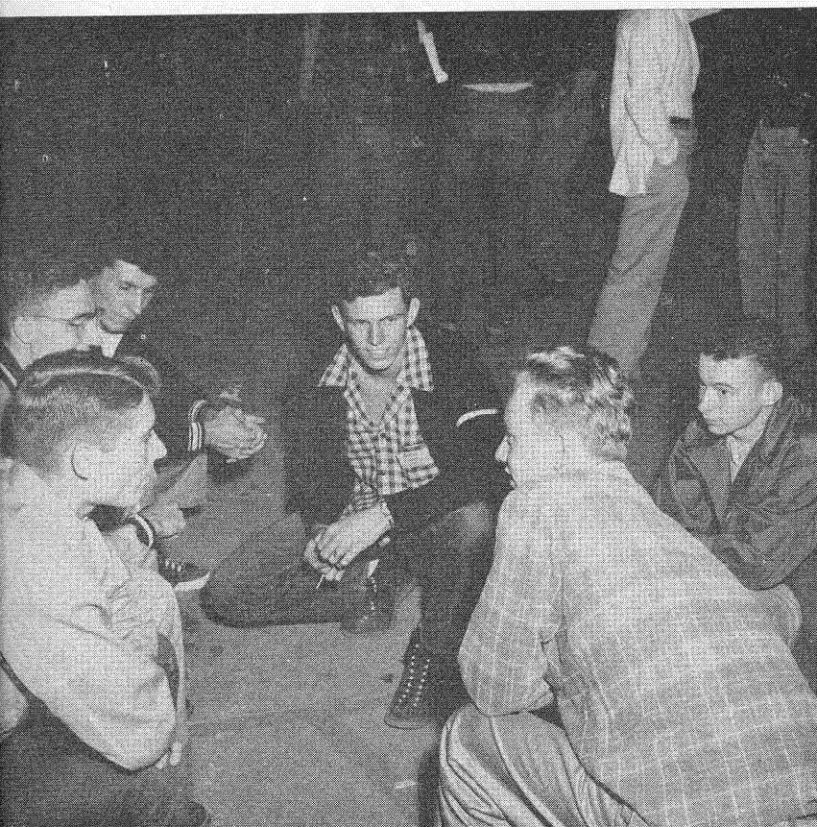

Attentive audience listens to faculty talk in stone amphitheater.

Frosh-faculty ballgame ended in defeat for the pros, 24-21.

THE annual New Student Camp is one of Caltech's hardest and soundest traditions. This year, from Friday, September 23 to Sunday, September 25, some 200 newly-registered freshmen and transfer undergraduates began their first year at the Institute at Camp Radford in the San Bernardino Mountains. There they met the student body leaders and faculty members with whom they would be associated in their years at Caltech. At regular morning and afternoon meetings in the big stone amphitheater they listened to informal talks about life and work at Caltech. The rest of the day they ate and loafed in the sun and played at everything from football to croquet. The pictures on these pages show some of the varied activity at this year's freshman camp. For some of the highlights, see the Beaver's column on page 18.

Student Wheel Dick Libbey '51 (center) joins frosh bull-session.

Sue Huck, Manager of the Student Houses, serves it forth.

