

Full day's program kept visitors on the move

Howard B. Lewis '23 and Ruben Mettler '44

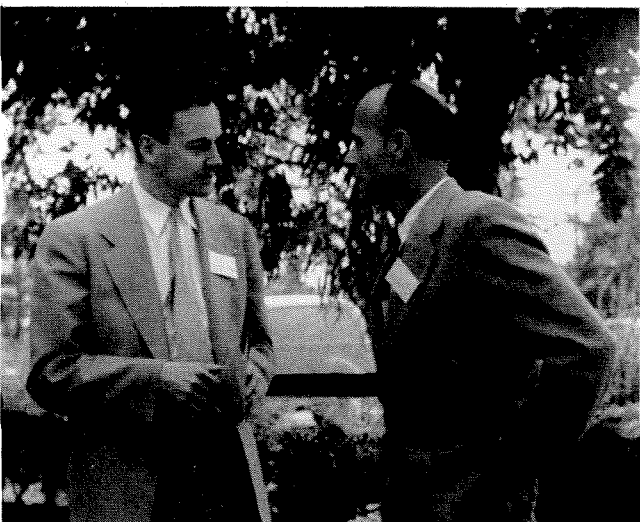

Taking time out to swap vital statistics

SEMINAR DAY

ABOUT 600 ALUMNI, wives and guests visited the campus for the 16th Annual Alumni Seminar on Saturday, April 11.

The daytime program featured a series of eight lectures, and lunch in the Student Houses, and concluded with groundbreaking ceremonies for the $150,000 Alumni Swimming Pool in Tournament Park, made possible by contributions to the Alumni Fund.

The successful day ended with a dinner at the Pasadena Elks Club, where President DuBridges spoke on current developments at the Institute, and Robert R. Dockson, economist of the Bank of America, delivered an address on "Economic Changes and the New Administration."

Prof. Richard P. Feynman and Harry H. Carrick '37

Breaking ground for the Alumni Swimming Pool